

A long career doesn't guarantee financial stability.
The Armstrong family knows.

Stafford

The Armstrong family has always been able to take care of themselves financially. Mr. Armstrong has earned enough in his long career with a local government contractor to support his family and take care of his wife, who has a disability. When he was unexpectedly laid off, they quickly exhausted their savings and worried about losing their home. Thankfully, Mr. Armstrong has now secured a new job, and with help from RUW and the ALICE Assistance Fund, they are caught up on mortgage payments.
